[CHARLESTON, SC – 01/26/2009] Patrick Clise has joined the electronic systems contracting company, eLifespaces, as an accounts manager. Previously with Tweeter, Clise developed an extensive background in audio visual products and services. Clise will be marketing and providing project management for entertainment systems including media room projects for the company.

“For the last five years, I have admired the height to which eLifespaces has raised the industry’s performance levels,” said Clise. “The expanded capabilities and expertise of eLife over Tweeter and other industry past participants will enable me to provide customers with a superior level of service.”
