eLifespaces

Fred Fabian, Chief Designer

Intuitive, invisible, incredible" are the company's descriptions of the systems they design and install. Other descriptions might be "Wow! You can do that? No way!" With an impressive wall of industry accolades and certifications to back him up, Fred Fabian, founder of eLifespaces, and his team are designing cutting edge environments for his clients and trade partners.

"Consider us as design and installation contractors," explains Fabian. "In our world, there is no such thing as visible wires — at home or in the office." eLifespaces is known for its custom top-of-the-line home theatres, security systems, boardroom and training centers. By designing and providing contractors with graphically depicted plans, eLifespaces is able to create life and work spaces that allow clients to maximize the technological benefits now available to them.

"After a thorough meeting of the minds with a client, we then graphically depict a project," explains Fabian. "This ultimately drives the cost down and allows for the general contractor to have specific and measurable plans to achieve the client's exact vision."

Holding multiple licenses and certifications in the construction, low voltage cabling, electronics, security (both fire and burglar) and electrical contracting industries, eLifespaces is proven within the trade and its customer base as professional and highly creative.

eLifespaces thrives on offering its diverse clientele with videoconferencing, THX Home Theater construction, ISF® and HAA® video and acoustic calibration services, CCTV systems, or any number of other specialized custom room design and installation requirements. "We consider ourselves as exceptions in the complex world of electronics and electronic installation by our commitment to the continued training and certification of our staff," explains Fabian.

In today's ever-changing world of technology, eLifespaces is on the cutting edge of product availability and what will be considered cutting edge tomorrow. It is the goal of the organization to provide each client with technologically innovative products and services that enrich their home or office. Fabian and eLifespaces boast an impressive number of successful jobs throughout the Lowcountry and the Southeastern U.S. including Florida, North Carolina and Georgia. In addition they are currently working with several manufacturers to provide better automated energy management systems to residential and commercial projects.

Enriching lifespaces is what it's all about at eLifespaces. Just ask the grandparents whose grandkids love to come over to experience their home theater, the parents whose teenagers bring their friends "home" to play video games on the big screen, or the executive whose high-tech conference room clinches the sell. It's all in the creativity, industry knowledge and client respect that makes eLifespaces the best answer when personal technology is the question.
